Hello! I am a concerned citizen writing to you about my thoughts regarding the current atrocity that is commonly (and quite inaccurately) known as “higher education.”

I am a white male living in another part of the country. When I heard that a professor recently quit Smith College due to the anti-white agenda that now exists in virtually ALL colleges and universities at this point, I felt that I had to speak up.

University education, once a noble and balanced style of learning, has descended into what is commonly known as "leftist indoctrination." Without a doubt, college/university education has become a one-sided form of the most aggressive brainwashing ever to take place in the field of education or any other field, for that matter. Wholly fixated on race, it has elevated the politics of race to the front and center of education, which houses within it a savage and profound prejudice against the white race specifically. What is touted so scornfully as “white privilege” is merely the natural cultural reflection of those who founded and built the culture. Always steeped in one "ism" or another, college/university professors obviously lack the imagination to ever give the world any fresh or new ideas and instead keep espousing the same mediocre (and really quite dangerous) ideologies.

Living in a fallen nation, with so much corruption and hatred, one has only to perform even the most cursory examination, and one can easily trace most of what is wrong with the country back to the same place: COLLEGES AND UNIVERSITIES. Shamelessly and aggressively promoting the same manmade ideologies for decades, the universities have at last succeeded in pumping out endless hordes of brainwashed leftist armies who almost universally hate their own country, their own flag, and their own heritage. Instead of teaching the students to find what is good and beautiful in the world and build creatively and lovingly upon those things, colleges and universities have taught the students to hate everything, and tear down and destroy everything, in the usual Marxist fashion.

Let me conclude by saying this. I openly reject EVERYTHING that comes from modern-day colleges and universities, and I encourage others to do the same. “Diversity,” for instance, the most aggressively inculcated of all university lies, is not a strength of ANY nation but actually a weakness, and in America it merely translates, over time, into “white genocide.” I eagerly await the day that these hate-filled universities and colleges, the centers of so much human rot and decadence, have lost their prestige in our culture. They are on that road now. More and more people are starting to search for educational alternatives, such as trade schools or online programs. I support this trend fully, and so do many others.

Signed,

NOT A FAN OF THE UNIVERSITY BRAINWASHERS
